Senatorial Election.

The agony is at last over. LAZARUS W. POWELL, ex-Governor of Kentucky, was on yesterday elected to the United States Senate, to succeed Hon. John B. Thompson. The vote stood, for Powell, 80, for Garrett Davis, 54; for Hon. John B. Thompson, 1—Senator Burton voting for Mr. Thompson.

From the best information within our reach we learn that Lazarus W. Powell was born in Henderson, Ky., the 6th of October, 1812, and is therefore in his 46th year. He graduated at St. Joseph's College, at Bardonia, Ky., and afterwards studied law with the celebrated John Rowan. In 1836, when he was just barely eligible, he was elected to the Legislature from his native county, but was defeated for the same office the ensuing year. In 1844 he was the Polk elector for the Congressional district in which he lived, and gained considerable popularity in that locality. In 1848 he ran as the Democratic candidate for Governor against the Hon. John J. Crittenden, but was defeated by an overwhelming majority. For a time his prospects seemed gloomy. He had been politically slaughtered, and had been laid in his sepulchre. But in 1851 he was put in nomination for the Governorship in opposition to his quondam law partner, Hon. Archibald Dixon. This gentleman kindly knocked at his tomb and bade Lazarus come forth, and forthwith he was resurrected. He defeated Mr. Dixon by a small majority, and, being the first Democratic Governor Kentucky had had for many years, although he could not have been elected over any other man in the Whig ranks than his competitor, this triumph at once placed him in a prominent position in the Democratic party.

Consequently, when Mr. Crittenden was returned to the United States Senate in 1853, Mr. Powell was voted for by the Democratic members of the Legislature, but was again defeated. It seems never to have had much luck when measured against this Nestor of the Senate, and we will be curious to see how he will compare with his colleague in the United States Senate. As he was the first Governor of Kentucky whom the Democrats had elected for many years, so he is also the first United States Senator whom they have elected to Congress. He obtained the nomination for Governor through the friendly exertions of ex-Secretary Guthrie, and the caucus nomination for Senator over the same gentleman—those who would have voted for Guthrie joining in on Powell in order to defeat Boyd.

Persons at a distance will be anxious to know why the Democrats of Kentucky preferred Mr. Powell over his competitors. It is not pretended that he is the ablest man in their party in the State, nor even that he is the superior of some of the defeated aspirants. There are several Democrats in the State who, as men of intellect, rank higher than Mr. Powell, but this was not the question taken into consideration. Some Democrats contended that the place was due him, not because of his superior qualifications, but simply because he had once made a hopeless canvass of the State against Mr. Crittenden, and had on a second trial defeated Mr. Dixon. But the fact of the business is, that it was a struggle between "young America" and old fogyism, in which the vigorous limbs of the ambitious and fast young man proved victorious over the flagging strength of decrepit old age. It will be found that Boyd's supporters in the caucus were principally from those districts whose delegates in the Cincinnati Convention voted from the start for Mr. Buchanan for President, while the friends of Powell were the advocates of the claims of Douglas. The contest was between the Administration and the Breckinridge Democrats, as Mr. Joubert once called him, have carried the day. The friends of Mr. Breckinridge have resented the manner in which their gallant young champion has been slighted. They have become chagrined at the idea that he of whom they expected so much cannot even obtain an insignificant clerkship for a personal or political friend, and resolved in turn that no partisan of Mr. Buchanan, as Boyd was known to be, should receive an honorable position at their hands. They have become mortified at the fact that all the empty boasts which they made to the people of Kentucky of the weight which this chivalrous young Ajax of Southern rights would carry with him in the Administration, have been flatly contradicted by the true state of things, and that the great influence which they claimed he would have in the direction of public affairs consists merely in ruling points of order. They have avenged the insults offered to their chief, and now laugh at the impotent rage of the admirers of Mr. Buchanan.

We have before said, and now repeat, that Mr. Powell is less objectionable to us than almost any of his competitors. Socially we have invariably heard him spoken of as a man of many virtues, never carrying his political animosities into the walks of private life. During his term of office as Governor of Kentucky, he won a personal popularity as just as it is universal. His friends are not confined to members of his own political organization, but there are many true Americans who, since a member of their own party could not be chosen, rejoice that such good fortune was in store for Lazarus W. Powell. He is a man of fair attainments and is certainly far superior to the ordinary class of Democratic politicians. Although he will never illuminate the political heavens with the lightning flashes of the genius of Clay, nor pour forth winged words with the matchless eloquence and inimitable manner of Crittenden, he will, we doubt not, at least sustain the honor and dignity of our fair State.

REFUTATION.—We understand that the ticket in favor of repudiating the city Railroad debt has been elected in Maysville, Kentucky. It is composed entirely of Democrats, at least so we have learned. We had hardly thought that the disgraceful example of Mississippi would ever be followed in Kentucky; but of late it seems that a change has come over our people.

A VOICE FROM THE HIGHLANDS.—There are few who have not read of the border feuds so long waged by the English and Scotch, or who have not perused with rapture the melancholy ballad which celebrates the heroic deeds performed at Chevy Chase. The deadly enmity which, in days long gone by, existed between the Lowlands and Highlands of Scotland have formed the topic of many a chaunt from the bards of that bonny land, and has thus become familiar with every lass or lad who has read Scott, Burns, or Campbell. But there are few of us who have known that similar state of jealousy existed here in our own Kentucky. We have not only a bitter feeling treasured on the border, between the citizens of the free and slave-holding States, but in Kentucky, we have been informed, there is as bitter a rivalry between certain counties as ever urged on to deeds of blood the followers of Argyle and McGregor. Never did a Highland cow lifer have more intensely the base manufacturer of Perth, or the industrious and frugal farmer, upon whom he believed "black mail," than does the mountaineer of Kentucky his more fortunate neighbor of the "blue grass" region. At least, we have been obliged to form such a conclusion from sundry Resolutions which have recently met our eye. These Resolutions are sent forth, no doubt, to act as the swift footed Malise in summoning the Highland clans to resist what they consider to be the unjust aggressions of the "blue grass" and "blooded stock" aristocracy. Just read this one extract, oh ye silk glove aristocrats, and stand back from the "mountain avalanche" which is about to overwhelm you:

WHEREAS, We, as citizens of Estill county, poor and mountaineers as we are, deem our rights as sacredly guaranteed to us as though we were the peers of the land, and we claim nothing but equality in the administration of the State government, we ask nothing but a fair administration of justice, to the mountainous regions of Kentucky. We well know that we are in the minority, when our numbers are brought in contact with the mighty (blue grass) aristocracy of Kentucky. But let the drums beat to arms, and you will see the mighty powers of the mountain avalanche, pouring and placing themselves under the banner of their country. But when there is a lucrative office to bestow, the word is stand back, you mountaineers, this is a high station and none but the royal blue grass blood is capable of filling it. We, the mountaineers, demur to this conclusion and claim our rights as free citizens, and nothing more.

A LIBRARY CURIOSITY.—The following is an exact copy "literatim, verbatim, et punctuatim" of a remonstrance presented by Gen. Combs, in the House of Representatives, on Friday, against the formation of a new county out of parts of Rockcastle, Clay, Owsley, Estill, &c. We omit the names appended to the document, some of which were as peculiar in their orthography as the letter itself:

ESTILL County Ky Dec 29th 1857
Dear Sir after your compliments to us we expect that you will think strange that we a good portion of the citizens of Estill should write you on this subject as hour Representative is there on the new County on the Big hill Mr. Croft says that we ought to have the county & it is just that we should but if 39 or 60 is taken of it will make the county of Estill a new nothing county we the undersigned one all Democrats and Lives in the new proposed and in the part Estill taken of we write to you believing that you will contend for hour writs and Croft will not Sir we are yours truly
To Lasty Combs
Frankfort Ky

It is very evident that a schoolmaster is needed in that intensely Democratic portion of Estill county. It ought to be made into a new county by itself so that the advantages of the common school system would be more immediately available.—Louisville Journal.

The above gem is not only a great curiosity on account of its literary merits, but on account of the ingenious reason it alleges why a new county should not be formed out of Estill. It is this, although it is "jest" that such a county should be formed, yet such a step should not be taken because it would make "Estill a new nothing county." We dare say the reason will appear an excellent one to the Democratic Legislature.

GOVERNOR'S LEVEE.—Among the most charming and agreeable features of the winter in Frankfort, are the weekly levees given by our accomplished and gallant Governor, CHARLES S. MOREHEAD. On these occasions the doors of the Governor's mansion are thrown open to the public, and all who choose to go are entertained with elegant hospitality. But we cannot but mention with particular admiration, the reception of last Monday night. The four large rooms were filled at an early hour to overflowing, by persons of all ages, both male and female.—The dignified Senator and matronly dame was found side by side with the moustachioed youth and gentle girl. Wit, intelligence, and beauty, formed the attractions of the evening, and of these there were many of the rarest specimens our State affords. So much of loveliness, so many stately and yet graceful forms, and so many fair faces beaming with that joy which is the most powerful of all beautifiers, we seldom before had the pleasure of seeing collected together. The scene haggard description, and can only be drawn by fancying one's self in a Mohammedan's paradise, surrounded with the most gorgeous of hours.

On yesterday morning as soon as the House was adjourned after the election of ex-Governor Powell to the United States Senate, a letter from that gentleman was read, inviting the members of the Legislature and all the public officers to a supper at the Mansion House at 9½ o'clock last evening. At the time of the writing of this paragraph, the entertainment had not transpired, and we are therefore unable to give any description of it. But Mr. Powell's well known hospitality and singular power of making his guests feel perfectly at home, was a convincing proof to all that a good time generally was to be anticipated at the Mansion House.

CONCERT.—We regret that Miss LIZZIE CARROLL was unavoidably compelled to postpone giving her concert, as announced, on last evening. The weather was so inclement that it was almost impossible for any one to venture out. But our disappointment finds sure relief in the reflection that the concert is only delayed and not given up altogether. This accomplished lady will return to our city in a few days, and will then delight our citizens with her sweet and highly cultivated voice. Let every one hold themselves in reserve until her return, and they may be assured that a rare musical treat is in store for them.

REFUTATION.—We understand that the ticket in favor of repudiating the city Railroad debt has been elected in Maysville, Kentucky. It is composed entirely of Democrats, at least so we have learned. We had hardly thought that the disgraceful example of Mississippi would ever be followed in Kentucky; but of late it seems that a change has come over our people.

Mr. WHITAKER's remarks on a Resolution, offered by himself, declaring it unnecessary and inexpedient to elect a United States Senator during this session of the Legislature; Mr. WHITAKER said:
In offering this resolution, I am impelled by a sense of duty. My views on the subject of the election of a United States Senator, have been given heretofore. These views were concurred in, and ably sustained by the Senators from Fleming, Breckinridge, Louisville, and by a majority of the American party in the Legislature. I have no reason now to change these views. I do not believe it is expedient, or necessary to elect at this session of the Legislature. Besides, it was decided by the Democrats in this Senate chamber, that it was illegal to go into an election on any other day, than the eighth day after the organization of the Legislature. Still they now do not act, which they then declared to be illegal. The American party has not used its power to do what I conceive to be right. But the counsel of the majority did not prevail, and I assure you that it is a source to me of deep regret. But the Speaker has decided that it is not now in order to entertain this resolution, and in accordance with the wishes of those Senators who have so nobly battled for the success of our principles, I shall withdraw it, feeling conscious of having discharged my whole duty.

Grand Fancy Ball.

We call particular attention to the advertisement of the ASSEMBLY BALL CLUB, which may be found in another column. There can be no doubt in the mind of any one who has ever spent a winter in Frankfort, but that this club is an "institution," and a very important one, too, to all who love gaiety and the merry dance. Their Balls are justly celebrated for the magnificence and elegance with which they are gotten up.—The managers of the Club are indifferent as to the expense, their sole desire being to give a series of agreeable and recherche entertainments, and this being accomplished they are satisfied. The object is not for profit, and on this account their Balls are much more select than those given anywhere else in the State. At them are generally met all the fashion, beauty, and elite of the State.

The next Ball is to be attended in fancy costume, and it is the desire of the Club to make it the Ball of the season. This fact alone will, we are confident, draw a large concourse of the reigning belles and beaux from every quarter.—We extend a general invitation to them all, and hope that each and every fair damsel will lend her aid to make it the most brilliant affair of the kind ever witnessed in Kentucky. We know how to do these things here in Frankfort, and when we determine upon having an elegant entertainment we invariably succeed.

THE CARNIVAL OF THE GIBNET.—A large number of condemned criminals have been sentenced to expiate their evil deeds upon the gallows, on Friday, the 15th day of January. In the city of New York, John Rogers, aged 17, is to be hung for the murder of John Swanson; and Michael Canemi, who killed Eugene Anderson. At Trenton, New Jersey, young Donnelly is to be hung for the murder of Albert S. Moses. In McKeesport, Pa., Charlotte Jones and Henry Fyfe will be executed for the murder of Alex. Wilson and his sister; two others, named Monroe and Stewart, convicted of the same crime, will be hung one week later. At Rohannook, Ala., John Clifford, who was convicted ten years ago for highway robbery and murder of a traveler, will be executed. Two negro slaves are to be hung in Nashville, Tenn., for killing an overseer. We believe there are others in different parts of the country, who have been sentenced to suffer the death penalty on that day; but we do not remember their names or crimes.

THE JEWISH DISABILITIES BILL OF ENGLAND.—On the 10th of December Lord John Russell again introduced a bill to remove the disabilities which prevent the Jewish subjects of the British Sovereign holding seats in Parliament. The first bill of this nature was introduced into the House of Commons by Lord John Russell, on the 10th of December, 1847, just ten years previously. Last year a bill passed the lower house to change the oaths of abjuration and supremacy, and give them a form which Christians and Jews could equally take, but was rejected in the House of Lords.—Much dissatisfaction was manifested at the determined hostility of the peers to the measure, and some disposition was manifested on the part of the Commons to take the matter into their own hands and send Baron Rothschild by a simple resolution. It was felt, however, that this would be a very extreme proceeding and might lead to a serious conflict between the two houses. The measure has again been introduced with the approval of the Government, and probably in the hope that the Lords, seeing the determination of the Commons, will prudently permit the bill to pass the Upper House. Indeed one or two influential members of the House of Lords again throw out the bill, the Commons will at all hazards admit the Jewish member for the city of London by a declaratory resolution.

THE UTAH DELEGATE IN CONGRESS.—A Washington letter gives this sketch of Mr. Bernhisel: The delegate is one of the most quiet and pleasant gentlemen in the House. In deportment, tone, and voice, person and countenance, he bears a striking resemblance to Robert J. Walker. He is a native of Pennsylvania. He looked haggard and worn after his long journey over the plains, on his first arrival, but has since recovered. Although he has been in the House for six years, I recollect hearing him speak but once, and that was to protest against any discussion of the social and domestic institutions of Utah. His forte is tactfulness. In private conversation he is fluent and agreeable. He is an industrious man of business, and attends faithfully to the interests of his constituents. His head is nearly bald, but from gray locks projecting diagonally from the skull near the ears, upward and forward, resembling the horns which the old masters used to embellish their portraits of satan, who was and is noted as a long-headed politician.

Too SHARP FOR BIGHAM.—Through the machinations of the Mormons, it is said, all the Indian tribes in and immediately about Utah are in a hostile attitude toward the United States. Brigham Young had an interview with the head chief of the Snake Indians, a powerful tribe upon the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains, and anxiously sought to secure his services, but old paint and feathers made the following sagacious and sententious reply:
When redskin fight redskin, blue coat stand upon the hill and look on; when bluecoat fight bluecoat, redskin stand upon the hill and look on; when bluecoat fight redskin, redskin turn his back—bluecoat is very great.
